VENDING MACHINE LITIGATION.

Plattsburg Business Men Bring Suit in Addison County Court,

Middlebury, June 16 .- Suit has been brought in the Addison county court by eight members of the Plattsburg chamber of commerce against Henry Robbins for $2800. Mr. Robbins signed two promissory notes for $1500 and $100 respectively, payable to the order of J. Edward Alexander, an officer of the Eureka Vending Machine company, The ma-chine company purposed locating in Plattsburg, New York, and tried unsucresafully to discount the notes at one of the Plattsburg banks. Members of the chamber of commerce interested in locating the company in Plattsburg signed a bank note, taking the Robbins note as collateral security. The note was for $3000 and signed by J. Edward Alexander and the eight members of the Plattsburg chamber of commerce. Before the note became due Alexander returned to Mr. Robbins the two notes signed by him, and the eight citizens of Plattsburg had the Plattsburg bank notes to pay. They now bring suit against Mr. Robbins to recover the value of the collateral which they claim was returned to Mr. Robbins without authority.
